He intimated that the Republican Army would soon begin the issuance of a military communique, probably weekly, and added: "Our system of communication is not yet very rapid, but the did not say whether the direction of the Republican Army was in the hands of one man or a committee. There is large reward outstanding for the arrest of Collins.

and train men for the work while we are engaged in fighting."

The unit of the organization, according to the officer, is the company, whose full strength normally is 100 men, each company being tactically self-contained and furnishing its own signallers, engineers and machine guns.

"The tendency, though," he continued, "is to operate in smaller units in areas like Ulater, where certain districts are either too thinly peopled or the population is hostile. We have only small groups engaged in reconnaissance and intelligence work. In some areas, where conditions are wholly favorable, the companies are formed into battalions and brigades. This is our regular army. The men on the run are somewhat similarly organized, but in small units. They work in conjunction with the regulars and are kept well armed, clothed and equipped. But the vast bulk of our men are not on the run, they are available for operations in the daytime, others at night."

Directing the Attacks.

Questioned regarding who directed the attacks, Col. X replied: "If it be an attack on a barracks, or other major operation requiring a large number of men, the officers in the district must satisfy us at headquarters that it won't mean throwing away men or ammunitation."

DOORN, Feb. 5.—Former Kaiserin Augusta Victoria of Germany is suffering periods of depression and shows great restlessness, says a bulletin issued at the House of Doorn, the home of the one-time German ruler. These are said to be the most remarkable symptoms shown by the patient.

The bulletin adds that her general with a continual slow decline, which is invariably serious.

The Irish Republican Army is not hampered by lack of funds, a large part of which, Col. X. declared, comes from America in subscriptions to the Republican loan. Local quartermasters, he went on, lock after the flying columns and provide billets and supplies.

"The men are all well fed and are in good health," be added, "and their con-

a new job, even if knocked about night:

Asked why individual policemen were shot down, he said that no policeman was picked off because he happened to be an officer, asserting "No attack is made unless something is wrong with the policeman's record, such as engaging in intelligence work."

Discussing the Republican army's methods of warfare, he explained: "Guerrilla fighting is not as futtle as many people may believe. Our people in '98 came out in masses against the British and were mowed down in one summer's campaign. We would be quickly annihilated, too, if we attempted to oppose the military in bulk. But we hit them without being hit. We have kept on for a year, and the boys are still full of ginger and eager to continue.

Our methods are undermining the morale of all the crown forces. Take the auxiliaries, for example. At first the auxiliaries, were a dashing lot and handy with their guns. But now, since they have been forced to take refuge in armor plated cars covered with netting, their prestige is gone. We no longer fear them.

Uchida Is Asked if Britain Is Forced to Assist Japan in War.

HE REPLIES IN NEGATIVE

Japanese Papers Believe Final Treaty Settlement Will Be Delayed.

Tokio, Fep. 4 (delayed) .- Questione in the Diet to-day whether the Anglowar between Japan and the United never had been considered as a country to which the terms of the alliance applied and that Japan and Great Britain had agreed to regard the peace commission agreement of 1914 as equivalent to the general arbitration referred to in Aricle IV. of the alliance of 1911. Representative Uyehara asked whether Japan had ever been notified that the interpretation of Article IV. would be altered as a result of the conclusion of a general arbitration treaty with the United States.

a general arbitration treaty with the United States. Viscount Uchida replied in the negative, but said opinions were exchanged while the arbitration treaty was being negotiated and he regretted that consideration of diplomatic secrecy prevented publication of the British view.

Then M. Uyehara asked if Great Britian considered herself exempt from the obligation of assisting Japan in the event of a Japanese-American war.

The Foreign Minister in reply said that though a general arbitration treaty had not been concluded, the peace commission agreement of 1914 was regarded agreement" between the United States and Japan has been made more strinand Japan has been made more stringent as a return for the according of greater rights to Japanese in America. These newspapers seem to think the new agreement will function even if the nations fail to negotiate a treaty. ment would be valid only in case a treaty should be ratified.

Defeat of a suffrage measure supported by the Kensei-Kai, or Opposition, party in the House of Representatives to-day has resulted in the expulsion of Yukio Ozaki and Daikichiro Tagawa, two leaders of that organization. The reason assigned for their expulsion was their failure to rally in support of the party's bill, M. Ozaki announcing that the Kensei-Kai measure was out of order, since another suffrage bill, supported by the Kokumin-to party, was already before the House.

M. Ozaki has been prominent in urging a resolution that the Japanese Government approach foreign Powers with a view to reaching an agreement restricting armaments, and it is believed his attitude in this matter affected his situation in the party, as his views were not shared by M. Kato, head of the Kensei-Kai. Immediately after it was announced that M. Ozaki had been rend out of the organization twenty-seven members of the House resigned from the Kensei-Kai out of sympathy with him.

Wachi Seki, a pupil of Woodrow Wilcom at Princeton University, led the detent of the bill introduced by the Kensei-Kai.
